Tasting notes

Elisa Gueneau hands this minuscule production wine from 25-year-old vines growing on thick limestone soils. The ruby color with garnet-red highlights immediately conveys the unusual seriousness of this Sancerre rouge. The nose rushes to envelop you in intense and complex aromas of black cherry, blackberry, wormwood, cacao, and a little toast. The palate carries over the aromas and nestles them amid a voluminous body and plenty of soft, silky tannins. The finish really kicks up that telltale earthy Sancerre base, followed by notes of cherries in brandy, tobacco leaves, and nutmeg.

This drinks well now and will continue to develop through at least 2024.
