LA PERDRIX

The history of “La Perdrix” dates back to the 13th century. It was a Mecca for hunting under the Capetian rule and King Louis IX of France, better known as Saint-Louis, used to go partridge shooting (perdrix means partridge) on the estate’s grounds.

The vineyards are composed of older vines and farmed sustainably.

Harvest is done by hand in small cases to preserve the fruits. Vinification is done separately and then the wines are blended together for aging.
